Library Developer May Be Chosen At Monday Meeting

By Sue Aucella Deacon

With the competition now narrowed down to three developers, town officials expect to choose a developer to renovate Memorial Hall Library next week, according to the Reuse Committee chairman.

Town Manager Kenneth Mahony said Monday that town officials have reviewed bids from developers interested in the $4.5 million library expansion project, and have eliminated all but three bidders.

Reuse Committee Chairman Lawrence Spiegel said yesterday that his committee would probably choose a developer, based on Mahony's recommendation, during a 4:30 p.m. meeting next Monday at Town Hall.

At that time, Spiegel said, the committee expects to hear a presentation from the developer. The town's Industrial Revenue Finance Authority will also meet at the same time to vote on preliminary approval of the developer's industrial revenue bonds.

The developer who wins the project will renovate the public library and build an addition to the town's specifications, working from plans drawn for Andover by Boston architectural firm Shepley, Bulfinch,

Attended Education Conference

attended a pro-Suffolk Union shorthand on Nov. 17 for the electronic office. Free members of the Andover High School Business Department, Carmelina Galvagna, Debbie Madden and Jo Ann Samra, attended the presentation given by Dr. Gregg A. Condon, a lecturer and author on business education.

The speaker focused on the importance of shorthand in the modern business office. Despite the new electronically automated offices there is a critical shortage of professional secretaries. The number of jobs requiring shorthand continues to increase. Condon noted that, "the study of shorthand is the acquisition of a basic education in English, a set of disciplined work habits, a personal communications skills and a marketable vocational skill."

Each year more secretarial jobs become available than any other occupation. Currently, 80,000 jobs requiring shorthand are unfilled. Condon noted that, "of all the courses offered in American public education, shorthand, along with its concomitant transcription skill, is the course of study that provides students with the greatest opportunity to gain employment. The U.S. Department of Labor estimates that for 1985, annual secretarial openings will top the 700,000 mark. Sixty-nine percent of those jobs will require shorthand. The secretary with shorthand will have the best pick of the jobs."

Town House Topics

All-Night Parking Ban To Begin December 1

The town's wintertime all-night parking ban will go into effect Thursday, Dec. 1, and continue through April 1.

Under the parking ban, on-street parking for more than one hour will be prohibited between 1 a.m. and 6 a.m.

all winter — and the ban will be strictly enforced by the Police Department.

The parking prohibition is designed to leave a clear path for snow removal crews cleaning up during and after winter storms.

Neighborhood Watch May Be Expanded

Andover may be about to expand its crime-fighting Neighborhood Watch program, the selectmen indicated last week.

During recent years the Police Department has helped neighborhoods establish crime watch programs on request, sending Office Joseph Oullette to neighborhood meetings to explain how the program works. Wildwood Road and Indian Ridge neighborhood associations are among those that have called on Oullette after having crime problems in their areas.

Along with offering basic information on locks and alarm systems, the neighborhood watch program emphasizes that residents should be aware of what is happening in their neighborhood, keep an eye on each other's homes — and call the police without hesitation whenever something looks suspicious.

Last week, Selectman Donn Bryne said he would like to see the program expanded because it educates townspeople, who then "end up helping themselves."

Town Manager Kenneth Mahony agreed to look into the plan, noting that it is "good for community spirit."

Selectmen To Discuss Parking Ban

The Board of Selectmen is scheduled to meet at 7:30 next Monday night, although there is little on their agenda at the moment.

The board will discuss a possible parking ban on the small common at School and Central streets, near South Church and Christ Church.

And they will accept a gift of conservation land on behalf of the town.

Otherwise, it appears that the board will adjourn after another in a recent series of brief meetings. The selectmen are also scheduled to meet on Dec. 5 and Dec. 19.

Andover High Open House Wednesday

Andover High School will host an open house for students and parents from 7 to 9 p.m. next Wednesday, Nov. 30, at the school.

Teachers will hold individual conferences with parents during the open house.

Report cards will be distributed to students during the day on Wednesday, and extra copies of report cards will be available for parents that evening.

Christmas Parties For Elderly At Elks

The Andover Lodge of Elks will again sponsor Christmas parties for elderly Andover residents. Any Andover resident of age 60 or older is eligible to make reservations for one of the parties. Party dates are Sunday, Dec. 11, and Sunday, Dec. 18. Tickets must be picked up in advance at the senior center. Tickets will be available on a first-come, first-served basis, beginning Thursday, Dec. 1, at 12 noon. Proof of residency must be presented when tickets are obtained.

Christmas Concert, Tree Lighting At College

Boston Boys Choir

A free Christmas concert featuring the Boston Boy's Choir, a tree lighting ceremony and a visit by Santa Claus will be presented Sunday, Dec. 4, on the campus of Merrimack College in North Andover.

The Christmas festivities, instituted as an annual tradition two years ago by Merrimack College President Rev. John E. Deegan, O.S.A., will begin at 5:30 p.m. with the tree lighting ceremony outside the Collegiate Church of Christ the Teacher. Merrimack students will participate in the ceremony and Rev. Deegan will light the Christmas tree. Merrimack's Alumni chorale will sing Christmas carols and Santa Claus will make an appearance.

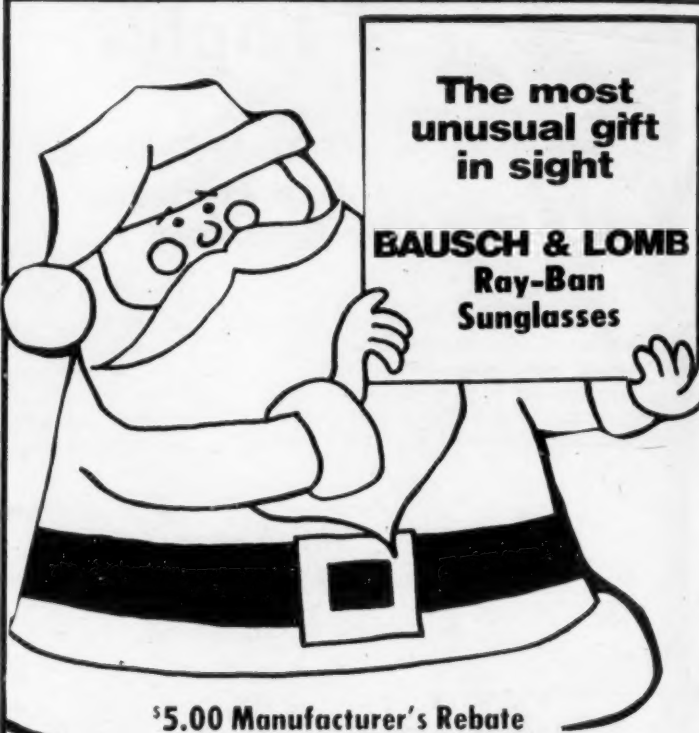

The Boston Boy's Choir will present a Christmas concert at approximately 6:15 p.m. The program, entitled "A Christmas TRYPTICH—the Coming, the Birth and the Fulfillment," will include selections drawn from classical and traditional Christmas music.

The Boston Boy's Choir, known formally as "The Boston Archdiocesan Choir School, was founded in 1963 and is in residence at St. Paul's Church in Cambridge. The pupils, ranging in age from ten to 14, receive full academic training in addition to an extensive musical education.

The choir has toured extensively. They have performed throughout New England, New York, New Jersey, Florida, Wisconsin, Maine, Rhode Island and abroad in Italy, France, England and Ireland. They have taken part in Youth Concerts at Symphony Hall and have sung with the Harvard-Radcliffe Choral Society and the M.I.T. Choral Society, the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Symphony Hall and Tanglewood and at Carnegie Hall in New York. They sang with the Boston Pops Orchestra, under the direction of John Williams, and the Tanglewood Festival Chorus in the Christmas Pops program in 1982. They made a number of recordings with the B.S.O. under Columbia, Philips and Deutsche Gramophon labels.

The concert is being presented in part through a contribution by Bay Bank Merrimack Valley.

"I welcome all the residents of the surrounding communities to come to campus to celebrate with us the joy and song of Christmas," said President Deegan.

Academy Students Commended

Three Andover students attending Phillips Academy have received National Merit Letters of Commendation.

Catherine A. Merrill, Donna M. Russell and Paul M. Kinsella were among the 96 Phillips Academy seniors to be designated commended students in the 1984 National Merit Scholarship program. They scooped among the top five per cent of the more than one million students taking the National Merit Scholarship Corporation qualifying examination. They scored just below the National Merit Semifinalists who will go on for scholarship competition.

Merrill is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Merrill of High St. Besides her academic achievements, she spent last year studying abroad in Barcelona, Spain. She is a member of the Latin Club, Spanish Club and Drama Club. She won the Charles Burns Poetry prize. She was a student at Andover's East Junior High before entering Phillips.

Russell, daughter of Professor and Mrs. William C. Russell of Elysian Drive is a student member of the school's budget committee and news and feature writer for the Phillipian, Andover's student newspaper. She is a senior tutor, member of the Newman Club and is involved in organizing social functions at Phillips. She was an East Junior High student before going to the academy.

Kinsella, son of Dr. and Mrs. Michael Kinsella, Kathleen Drive, is on the varsity cross country and golf teams. He also is a member of the Newman Club and involved in tutoring other students. He was a student at East Junior High prior to entering Phillips.

AVIS Has Annual Meeting

Claus Dengler

The Andover Village Improvement Society held its 88th annual meeting November 15 at Temple Emanuel. Following a social hour and buffet dinner, president Nat Smith presided over a brief business meeting. Reports were given by Peggy Keck, land acquisition, Eileen Reilly, membership, and Dave Dargie, land management.

Claus Dengler, nominating, committee, presented nominations for the board trustees. George Edmonds was newly elected to a three-year term and Tom Cone, Charles Gaunt, Eileen Reilly and Peggy Keck were re-elected to three-year terms. Recently appointed Dargie was elected to a two-year term. David Roberts, Jr. was re-elected for one year to the investment committee.

Cups were presented to Al Griffin and Ralph Bailey for loyal service as wardens for the Goldsmith Woodlands and Skug River, respectively.

Their hard work in overseeing the land on a day-to-day basis and maintaining trails is very much appreciated.

Three new pieces of land were acquired during the last year. The first is a six-tenths acre off River Road which abuts Deer Jump and widens it at a particularly narrow section. A ten acre parcel purchased from Richard Lindsay in West Andover off Bailey Road, abutting land already owned by AVIS as part of the Bailey estate (five acres). This has the potential for a significant new reservation.

The third piece is the Collins Reservation, almost five acres off Pine Street. This was the generous gift of Helen Collins Dooley to memorialize the Collins family who once owned a large farm in that area and lived there for five generations.

Two honorable memberships were given; one to Helen Dooley for her gift of land, the other to Dickie Thiras for loyal service over the years.

A program by John Gould enlightened members to the large variety of wildflowers growing on AVIS lands. More than 200 species were identified during the spring and summer months, including two rare flowers. One was a colony of whorled pagonia orchids which has not been seen in Essex County since 1905; the other was a dwarf crested iris which has previously only been seen from Pennsylvania southward.

Newly printed postcards of scenes from three reservations were on display and are available for purchase from several local stores.

A collection of photographs taken by Ted Taylor of the Taft Reservation was exhibited. This was part of a library display during the summer.

The following officers were elected at a trustees meeting, following the general meeting: Nat Smith, president; Claus Dengler, first vice president; Lynn Beattie, second vice president; Al Koch, third vice president; Tom Cone, clerk; Charles Gaunt, treasurer.

Family Week Observed

National Family Week, Nov. 20-26, is being observed by the Family Service Association of Greater Lawrence. Thomas Kelley, executive director, points out that local observance in this area by the agency is one of many to be held across the nation by local affiliates of Family Service Association of America. The 1983 theme is "Invest in Families."

Family Week traditionally coincides with the Thanksgiving season to highlight family values and the importance of families. Congress annually proposes that the special week be designated by an official proclamation of the president.

Family Service Association of Greater Lawrence is a United Way agency offering counseling and other services to prevent and treat family and individual problems. Accredited by the Council on Accreditation of Services to Families and Children, it is one of 265 family agencies annually serving three million children and adults in the United States and Canada.

Andover residents who are active members of the Board of Family Service Association of Greater Lawrence are Janet Hosmer, president; Rev. Gary Cornell, vice president; Roger Bower, treasurer; Priscilla Anderson, Naomi Gardner, Robert Henderson, Suzanne Morton, Eleanor Scribner, Anthony Torrisi, Lee Weiner and Robin Yerkes.

Elder Services Gets Grant

Stepped-up outreach efforts to elder residents in need of energy, conservation and weatherization information will be provided to senior citizens by Elder Services of the Merrimack Valley as a result of a grant from the Massachusetts Executive Office of Energy and Resources.

The Energy Conservation Program will target its services to areas and specific populations where access to energy conservation information has not been as easily attainable.

According to Mary Rouine Marsh, project supervisor, "The $5,000 grant will be used to hire an outreach worker to provide public information on existing energy conservation services and programs to senior citizen groups, clubs and individuals and to elderly hispanics who, due to a language barrier, may not be aware of these programs.

"The outreach worker," according to Marsh, "will be working with community action programs and other agencies who offer conservation measures through loans or grants to individuals."

Proposed start-up date for the energy conservation program is December 1. All inquiries should be directed to Elder Services of the Merrimack Valley.

Because snakes stare so fixedly, people once believed they had the power to hypnotize other animals.

Susan Cunningham

Honored For Leadership By Academy

Susan Cunningham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Cunningham, of Andover, has been named a 1984 United States National Achievement Award winner for leadership service.

Miss Cunningham was nominated for the award made by the United States Achievement Academy, by Olga B. Buczynski, director of volunteers at Franklin Regional Hospital, Franklin, N.H.

The academy selects winners upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counsellors or other school sponsors and upon the Standards of Selection set forth by the academy. Criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, cooperative spirit, dependability and recommendation from a teacher or director.

The academy recognizes less than ten per cent of all American High school students.

Annual Meeting

Beverly Shiffman, president of Student Camp and Trip Advisors, Inc., recently chaired a week-long corporate annual meeting. Fifteen representatives from all over the country met to report on and discuss the 221 visits made this summer to overnight camps, specialty camps, hiking and biking trips, cross country trips, wilderness trips, ranches and European programs. Founded in 1970, SCATA now has five affiliates and represents more than 450 programs throughout the world.

Christmas Holiday Workshop

The Department of Community Services will offer a Christmas Holiday Workshop during the early weeks of December for people who want to decorate their home or office with craft decorations.

Karen Sullivan, a DCS instructor for a number of years, will offer a Macrame Picot Tree Workshop on Thursday, Dec. 1, from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at the Andover High School. Create this holiday tree by using a series of square knots to make the picot loops. Students who have no previous knowledge of macrame are welcome to participate. The tree can be hung on an outside door or used as a wall hanging. Students will have to purchase supplies; a supply list will be available when registering.

Christine Hannula, the evening-adult education sewing instructor, will teach how to make colorful Christmas decorations for the home in the Calico Christmas Decorations Workshop on Tuesday, Dec. 6, at Doherty Junior High from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Students can choose to make a braided wreath, pillow Christmas tree and soft easy-to-make holiday ornaments. Sewing is a prerequisite. Students purchase supplies; a supply list is available at the DCS office.

Veronica Croke will help participants assemble the pieces and decorate a gingerbread house on Tuesday, Dec. 13. The gingerbread will have to be baked prior to class. The completed house makes a great centerpiece or gift for that special someone. Students must purchase supplies; supply list is available at the DCS office.

Registration for these three workshops is at the DCS office, Shawsheen School Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Christmas Party For Elderly

His Efforts Were Hardly Frivolous As He Recorded Old Andover

By Sue Aucella Deacon

He came to Andover from a small town in Indiana 21 years ago, a young photographer with no clear idea of where his career would lead, but a sense of "great adventure" in moving to New England. He opened his shop in a shabby and largely abandoned building in Elm Square — the Musgrove building — and during the next eight years, he documented a part of Andover that is now changed and past.

Part of it was conscious, photographer Richard Graber remembers, two decades later. "I took pictures because I knew things were going to change, or were in the process of changing. I thought about the fact that I was recording things — I didn't think anybody else was recording things."

And part of it was unconscious: When he wanted to escape from his studio, he grabbed a camera and wandered around the square, shooting pictures to finish off a roll of film.

"These were pictures I did when I should have been working. I was goofing off when I should have been making a living," he says.

"In many ways, this is the kind of thing I went into photography to do — you forget that you were once doing it just for yourself, you get so wrapped up in making a living. Twenty years later, these are the things I'm glad I did."

Some 60 of those black-and-white photographs are now on exhibit at the Andover Gallery, 68 Park St. The show, called "Andover: Elm Square in the Sixties", opened last week and will remain at the gallery through Dec. 30.

In his first major exhibit, Graber captures people and places of Elm Square and Post Office Avenue, and a few shots of Elm Street (including "Pete's", then owned by Peter Dantos and now the Andover Spa), as they appeared between 1962 and 1970. There is a lovely nighttime scene of Memorial Hall Library in a snowfall; another of young men hanging around two motorcycles in front of Graber's shop; several sweeping aerial shots of downtown.

Many of these people and places are now gone. Printing these photographs, the work of younger days, "was a real act of nostalgia for me," Graber says. "Visually, these are interesting photographs — they're not flashy, but I think people will find them interesting."

Longtime townspeople will be struck by these images because Elm Square has changed gradually, almost imperceptibly over the years. And newcomers "will probably be surprised that this is Andover," the photographer says.

Graber still lives in Andover with his two daughters (Jennifer, a 1983 Phillips Academy graduate; and Caelin, an Andover High sophomore.) He speaks of his work and his memories with energy and warmth. Today he is a well-established photographer who shoots informal, candid shots with an eye for what is "visually interesting and psychologically interesting. I'm not good at orchestrating things, but I think I do see things, and I can let things happen sometimes."

He takes pictures of children in "natural settings" (outdoors, rather than in the studio), and fills wedding albums with unconventional shots of intimate family scenes. "I take pictures of what goes on," he explains. "I tend to be relatively invisible — people assume that I'm somebody's relative who's just kind of taking some pictures."

He remembers one wedding where the wedding party, assembled outside the Lanam Club for a formal portrait, was amused by a frog hopping around their feet. "Everyone was watching the frog. So when they went back inside I took a picture of it, and I ended the wedding album with a little picture of the frog. They loved it — because it was their wedding and their frog. That's the kind of thing I look for, but you can't make that happen."

For the past 20 years he has also done work for Phillips Academy, shooting publicity photos and photos for the school's alumni magazine. He has also photographed a number of local politicians, including Lawrence Mayors John Buckley and Lawrence Lefebvre, and Congressional candidates John Kerry and Paul Tsongas.

Graber grew up in Goshen, a small college town in northern Indiana. He learned to take pictures as the editor of his college yearbook, and then started taking pictures of his little nieces and nephews and his friends' weddings.

After two years in Europe during the mid-fifties, he returned to Indiana to become a graduate student in sociology at the state university — but soon found he was spending more time with his Roloflex (which he bought in Germany and has used "ever since") than with his textbooks. "I finally decided that sociology was not my cup of tea, and that I was going to be a photographer."

From the beginning he photographed "candid sort of things, in available light (rather than shooting with a flash), and that's what I ended up liking to do. This is not a very formal age," he notes, "so I was in the right place at the right time in that sense."

Graber found Andover on his way back from a camping trip to New Hampshire, and decided to stay here because he thought it was "a lovely town, with a nice business district. And there was a little shop for rent right on the main square."

With only a vague idea of how he would find work, the photographer placed an advertisement in the Townsman (his first and last advertisement) and opened his shop on the first floor of the Musgrove building. "I kind of crept into town," he says, "and I've been here ever since."

The Musgrove was built before the turn of the century, Graber says, in what had been a wide-open square. It was "a prestige building," housing law and insurance offices. Later it was the home of the post office (giving Post Office Avenue its name), the telephone company, and an auto dealership.

Richard Graber

But by the sixties, the Musgrove was neglected and deteriorating, and its upper floors were all but empty. "People hated the Musgrove," Graber remembers. "I used to tell people, 'That's a beautiful building, look at it.' But people didn't see the shape of the building for the fact that it was sort of shabby."

Post Office Avenue, since renovated into "a charming little street," was also "grubby and shabby" 20 years ago, with only a gravel roadway. "People didn't see that those were neat buildings."

Junior high and high school students gravitated downtown after school during the sixties, Graber says. The high school had moved from what is now the Doherty Junior High site to what is now West Junior High when he arrived, but kids were still in the habit of heading for Main Street every afternoon. High school students met at Ford's coffee shop on Main Street, and junior high students, at DeQuattro's restaurant in the Musgrove.

Many of those students became friends of the young photographer. "I was in my twenties, and of interest to them because I was new and I was working for myself — they thought that was really neat." Young people crowded his little shop every afternoon, sitting on the desk and in every corner, talking, "and then Bill Doherty would walk by and come in and start talking about football in the twenties. It became kind of a hangout."

Graber took photos of those students, and of his neighbors in the building: a barbershop ("I could do a whole show on the barbershop"), DeQuattro's, a shoe repair shop, a town bar. "I think now of stuff I should've done and didn't," he says. "Reggie Norton ran a shoe repair shop on Post Office Ave., and he used to put out a sign that said, 'Closed, Gone Fishing.' I wish I got that."

The Musgrove building as he knew it died on June 5, 1970, when the roof fell in. Graber was in his car parked outside the building when a beam crashed through the top floors — he heard the explosion, and saw a shower of glass and bricks and water streaming down the side of the building.

The building was closed and its tenants were suddenly homeless. (Graber snuck in to use his darkroom, even though there was no electricity; he printed by candlelight.)

Many townspeople believed the time was right for tearing down the Musgrove, and an "urban renewal" plan for razing all of downtown and rebuilding it as a "Colonial shopping mall" was proposed to town meeting (where it was defeated). The building

Exhibit At Bradford

"Constructions" by Don Doe is on display in the Laura Knott Gallery at Bradford College.

Doe, a graduate of the Cleveland Institute of Art where he also taught in 1980-81, has had his work exhibited at the Piano Craft Guild Gallery in Boston, Radcliffe College and at the Cleveland Museum of Art. He was a finalist in the 1982 Massachusetts Artists fellowships in the Visual Arts competition.

In describing his work, Doe says, "I deal with three main concerns: articulating action of the entire wooden form including wing-nuts, hinges and screws; changes in the features of the painting to build further form; and the process of naming and renaming that allows the work to speak back during all phases of the work. . . This naming, structuring and reforming through color are some of the major concerns in the actualization of my work."

Gallery hours are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Friday; 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. There is no admission charge.

Workshop

The 30-member, authentically costumed troupe will perform at 8 p.m. at the Collins Center.

Here for one performance only, Mandala takes its audiences on a world tour, from the festive scene of a carnival in Romania to the swirling skirts and fast-paced tap steps of Mexico. The mood ranges from the soft and mysterious gracefulness of a women's dance from Armenia to the exuberant, energetic dances of Poland. The present program includes a ritualistic Morris dance from England with its high leaps and swinging handkerchiefs, dance and music from Spain, Hungary, Colombia, Canada and Bulgaria and a nostalgic look at the American '50s, complete with swing steps and bobby socks.

Mandala, whose name means circle of life in Sanskrit, has grown steadily since its beginning in 1965. The company now gives 40 concerts a year in colleges and concert series throughout the Northeast. In 1982 Mandala represented this country with an all-American program at the Rattviksdansen International Folk Festival in Sweden and participated in Quebec's World Folklore Festival this summer.

There is no charge for the workshop, but it will be limited to the first 200 people. Those wishing to attend should call the center for seating reservations or drop in at the Collins Center box office.

A special senior citizens' reception, with specially discounted tickets, is planned for this performance.

Tickets are available at the Andover Bank, Main Street, Andover, "Just For You," 36 Main St., Andover, and at the Collins Center Box Office, open daily from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Boston Camerata presents their Christmas concert, "Sing We Noel," on Sunday, Dec. 18, at 3 p.m. in Jordan Hall, New England Conservatory, Thursday, Dec. 22, at 8 p.m. in Sanders Theatre, Harvard University, Cambridge. A special version of the program for children and their parents will be on Saturday, Dec. 17, at 2 p.m. in Paine Hall, Harvard University, Cambridge. Featured works will be carols and motets from the chapels of Renaissance England, hymns and anthems from churches of colonial America and folksongs from county celebrations of Hampshire old and new.

One Christmas Eve long ago, a poor woman grieved because she had no ornaments for her children's Christmas tree. That night, however, a spider covered the tree with a delicate web, which, when touched by the morning sun, turned to gold. Today tinsel strands symbolize the spider's web.

'Black Nativity' To Be Presented

"Black Nativity," a powerful gospel song and dance celebration of the Birth of Christ, will be presented at South Church at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 13, by the National Center of Afro-American Artists.

The performance is open to the community, free of charge, with a good will offering which will go toward the restoration fund for the church's organ.

From the Processional, "Go Tell it on the Mountain," to the Gospel Recessional, "Away in a Manger," "Black Nativity" has been described as "moving" and "profound," a statement of the nativity and affirmation of life in general.

It was written by Langston Hughes, unofficial poet laureate of his people, and is performed on a simple stage by a small cast of actors, including Mary Joseph, narrators and the Kings. Large choruses of children and adults, pilgrims and townspeople move into and around the audience, accompanied by piano and African percussion.

Other songs include "Joy to the World," "My Way's Cloudy," "No Room at the Inn," "Poor Little Jesus," "Mary, Mary, What You Gonna Name Your Baby?" "Christ is Born," "Rise Up Shepherd and Follow."

This is the fourth annual production of "Black Nativity" by the Center of Afro-American Artists and Elma Lewis, artistic director. The Elma Lewis School of Fine Arts is the teaching division of the center and the only institution of its kind in the United States. It has been ministering to the cultural and artistic needs of the black residents of Boston since it as founded by Elma Lewis in 1950.

Christmas School At Church

For the 18th consecutive year a Christmas School for four and five year olds will be held at Faith Lutheran Church in Andover. Classes will be held December 5-9 from 9:30 a.m. to 11:15 a.m.

The purpose of the Christmas School is to share with the young children an understanding of the significance of the Christmas event. The school is open to all children in the area, although, due to space limitations, only the first 50 children to apply will be accepted. There is no charge—a free will offering will be received each day.

Women from Andover churches will make up the staff of the Christmas School. Mrs. Karen Shettel, 101 Central St., Andover, chairwoman, may be contacted for registration.

Boutique

The Hale Hospital Auxiliary will hold its 14th annual Christmas Boutique and Bake Sale on December 5 and 6.

As in the past, the boutique will contain handmade items such as mittens, hats, slippers and Christmas ornaments made at workshops.

Trip To Theatre

The Andover Council on Aging will sponsor a trip on Wednesday, Dec. 21, to see the Merrimack Valley Regional Theatre's production of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol." Buses will leave Andover at 10:15 a.m. for the 11 a.m. performance, followed by luncheon at the Spears House featuring a choice of London broil or boneless breast of chicken. Tickets may be purchased at the senior center.

Toddlers between 18 months and three years appreciate action toys. They like things to ride and climb on, balls, a pool, a sandbox. They also like play furniture and appliances, blocks, clay, large crayons, a blackboard with chalk and simple musical instruments.

Irving E. Rogers, Sr., Andover Publisher Dies At Age 81

Irving E. Rogers, Sr.

Irving E. Rogers, Sr., 81, chairman of the board of the Lawrence Eagle-Tribune and the Andover Townsman, died Thursday, Nov. 17, at his home.

Mr. Rogers, a resident of 51 Sunset Rock Road, Andover, had been ill for several months, courageously and quietly battling cancer.

He had been publisher of the Lawrence Eagle-Tribune for 40 years, having assumed the position from his father, Alexander H. Rogers. On Aug. 20, 1982, the same day that he had taken control of the newspaper, he turned ownership over to his son, Irving E. Rogers, Jr., retaining his interest in the company by remaining as chairman of the board.

While his principal concern was in the production of the award-winning daily newspaper, Mr. Rogers was also interested in the community press as well, as evidenced in his acquisition of the Andover Townsman in 1949. With a circulation only in the hundreds for a community newspaper which began publication in 1894, his leadership resulted in steady growth and improvement resulting in today's circulation in excess of 6,000 and receipt of several journalistic awards.

A softspoken individual, Mr. Rogers ran his newspapers on family principles and took a personal interest in the day to day operations, including dealing with all of the personnel under his command. It was not unusual for him to make daily visits with employees and to be accessible to the general public as well.

Persons having concerns about their community spoke with him and he passed the requests on to staff members for follow up.

He was also involved in the community, continually seeking ways to improve opportunities and the quality of life for its people.

He was particularly instrumental in the economic recovery of Greater Lawrence in the early 1950s, following the exit of the textile industry, the city's lifeblood, to the south.

With unemployment in the area the highest in the country, Mr. Rogers spearheaded the formation of a development and industrial commission which brought new and diversified industries into the vacant mill buildings and earned for the city the reputation of "The City That Wouldn't Die."

His personal leadership style, a rare commodity in the modern-day newspaper industry, has resulted in these newspapers remaining among the few that are family-owned. He worked to maintain that family image in his newspapers in an era when over a quarter of all newspapers in the country are owned by impersonal chains.

His involvement in the community is evidenced by his interest in Bon Secours Hospital, where he served as chairman of the board, and the Lawrence Boys Club. He was active in the Lawrence General-Bon Secours Joint Hospital Fund, which provided improved health care facilities for the community and also worked to unify the two hospitals in providing better services to area residents.

In 1976 Bon Secours Hospital dedicated its new acute care building in his honor.

While these were major contributions, Mr. Rogers also assisted in other beneficial services such as Greater Lawrence Hospice, Nevins Home, Methuen and Goodwill Industries, to name a few.

He established the Rogers Family Foundation which has given more than $1 million to worthwhile causes.

He also gave of his energies to the Automobile Club, Central Catholic High School and Merrimack College. The Eagle-Tribune Santa Fund, an annual effort to provide Christmas cheer to those less fortunate, was a favorite beneficiary of his generosity.

Mr. Rogers was instrumental in forming the Greater Lawrence United Fund, providing the opportunity for people to direct their contributions to one organization rather than several individual charities.

Born in Lawrence Aug. 20, 1902, he attended Lawrence High School and graduated from Phillips Academy, Andover, in 1921. He was a member of the class of 1925 at Dartmouth College and attended the school of journalism at the University of Wisconsin.

He began his newspaper career with his father at the Lawrence Daily Eagle and Evening Tribune during the 1920s as a reporter. He later was general manager of the Rogers-owned Lawrence radio station WLAW until its sale in 1953.

He was married to Martha Elizabeth Buttrick in Free Christian Church, Andover, June 16, 1928.

There were three sons, Irving E., Jr., Allan B. and Alexander H.

Alexander H. is in business in Florida.

Irving E., Jr., of Andover, is publisher of the Lawrence Eagle-Tribune and the Andover Townsman.

Allan B. was editor of the Eagle-Tribune until his death in 1962 at which time Irving E., Sr., assumed the role of editor and publisher.

There are ten grandchildren.

Memorial services were held Saturday in Free Christian Church. Rev. Dr. Jack L. Daniel, pastor and Rev. Francis X. Irwin, director of Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Boston, officiated.

Private graveside services were held at the family plot at Bellevue Cemetery, Lawrence.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Bon Secours-Lawrence General Joint Hospital Corporation, Box 312, Lawrence, Mass., 01842.

41-Year Postal Career To End For Postmaster Ed Morrissey

By Sue Aucella Deacon

He joined the postal service in Andover as a temporary employee, straight out of high school. He will retire from the postal service next Friday, Dec. 2, as Andover's postmaster — after 41 years with the postal service, all of those years spent in Andover.

Postmaster Edward J. Morrissey says Andover's postal service "has been a big part of my life. It's the only job, really, that I've ever had — it's been my whole life."

Morrissey lives on Chestnut Street with his wife, Janet; their two grown sons, Joseph and Richard, also live in Andover.

He accepted what was to be a temporary position at the post office after graduating from Punchard High School, and he did "everything — I carried mail, I worked as a clerk, I drove a mail truck."

Morrissey left the post office for a two-year hitch with the U.S. Navy during World War II (he was stationed in San Diego), and in 1946 returned to what was to become a lifetime career in Andover.

During the years that followed, he did "most everything there is to be done" at the post office, he says, from delivering rural routes to running offices.

And when he was named postmaster in 1979, he became responsible for "every phase" of postal operations in Andover.

He has, of course, seen many changes in the town's postal service during the last 41 years. "When I started, we had one vehicle now we have 19. There were seven routes now we have 21 routes plus three rural routes." He is not sure how much staffing has changed, since the complement of carriers and other postal workers has gone "up and down" over the years.

Local residents might also recognize the postmaster as the drum major for the colorful Clan MacPherson bagpipe band of Lawrence. (He also serves as business manager for the group.) Marching with the popular Clan — always the hit of local parades — is something he "really enjoys," Morrissey says.

The postmaster says he expects to miss the postal service "for a while. But I'm looking forward to retirement. I have three beautiful little grandchildren I intend to spend some time with. And I want to play some golf — and when I get bored with that, maybe I'll look for something part-time."

He credits the people of the town with helping to make his postal career a "very happy" one.

My relationship with the people in Andover is something I've treasured. It's always been good," Ed Morrissey says.

That's one of the things I'll be sorry to leave behind.

Andover Postmaster Edward J. Morrissey

Challenges Ruling

Andover attorney and Republican State Committee member William E. Melahn filed a lawsuit in Superior Court contending the secretary of the Commonwealth incorrectly ruled that he is not permitted to use the phrase "Candidate for Re-Election" next to his name on the ballot for the Republican state election to be held in March 1984.

The state committee positions, of which there are 80 for each political party, are voted upon at the same time as the Presidential Primaries.

Melahn, who is the incumbent, contends that he was elected in accordance with the bylaws of the Republican Party and should be permitted to list himself as a candidate for re-election. The dispute hinges upon an interpretation of the phrase, "elected incumbent," contained in Chap. 53 Sec. 70D.

Melahn obtained a court order Thursday requiring the Secretary of the Commonwealth to show cause why it should not be restrained from printing the ballot pending the disposition of his lawsuit. The ruling on his request was slated to be heard before Superior Court Justice Meyer on Tuesday, Nov. 22, at 9:30 a.m. at Suffolk County

Committee Answers Teachers' Grievance

The School Committee has issued a response to the Andover Education Association on the teachers union grievance against the appointment of a new basketball coach at Andover High School.

During an executive session last Tuesday, committee members voted on their response to the grievance. Superintendent Kenneth Seifert said this week. The superintendent said he could not disclose the contents of that response which was sent to the AEA on Monday.

Committee members based their response on a recommendation from the superintendent. Seifert held a grievance hearing on the coaching appointment two weeks ago.

Earlier this month, the committee voted to appoint Thomas Ryser of Tewksbury, a Medford physical education instructor, to succeed Wil Hixon as AHS boys' basketball coach. Hixon has retired from that position.

AEA President Stephen Jankauskas said the union opposed that appointment because under an article of the teachers' contract signed this fall, Andover employees must be given preference in filling extra-curricular activities. Several Andover employees applied for the coaching slot, Jankauskas said.

The union must now decide whether to accept or reject the school committee's decision. Seifert explained. If the AEA rejects the decision, the question will go to arbitration, and the committee and the union must agree on an arbitrator.

Thanksgiving

In a world torn by flames of war, terrorist attacks ravaging death on peace-keeping forces, and concerns about the presence of nuclear capabilities, America pauses this week to observe its most personal holiday - Thanksgiving.

It is a time when a country takes time to reflect on its blessings, just as the Pilgrims did centuries ago, pausing then to give thanks for a bountiful harvest which would assist them through the winter in their new land. Also, free of sickness, and happy to share their harvest with their Indian brothers who had aided them in their first ventures in a new and foreign land.

Our traditional celebration is far different than that of the 1620's, but basically remains the same in meaningful observance of the opportunity to give thanks for our good fortune and the ability to continue to live protected by the freedoms we so cherish.

Our world is much more complex, having matured and improved our lives through educational and scientific progression. The primitive lifestyles of the Pilgrims no longer exist for America wrapped in the warmth of a dwelling far different than the huts where the first Thanksgiving meal was served.

A modern range or microwave has replaced the flaming hearth with its huge kettles and continued stoking of the fire to prepare the meal.

Having finished the festive meal, entertainment and recreation take on a dimension not even dreamed of on that day in Plymouth in 1621, when the Pilgrims and their Indian friends had such things as archery competition. Tomorrow it will be relaxing before the television for football or other less demanding efforts toward relaxation.

But there will be one part of the original theme which remains ever present and makes the holiday one of such significance.

The brotherhood which existed then and the opportunity to meet together as families and friends remains constant and has through the centuries.

Contained within that theme of family thanksgiving is the hope of all that through this observance, this opportunity to be mindful of the importance of the brotherhood of man we so much desire, those problems of the world which plague us might one day be resolved.

Let us be mindful in prayerful thanksgiving on this holiday of the sacrifices made by young Americans whose efforts were dedicated to preserving and building a peaceful world, in lands far removed from their beloved country and families.

Allow us to continue to hope that dedicated leaders here and abroad will be able to convince one another of the realization that living in peaceful coexistence is much more important to the preservation of mankind than the divisiveness of conflict.

And, permit us to believe that the love and brotherhood as exemplified at that first Thanksgiving, and observed tomorrow, will permeate our lives perpetually and spread to people everywhere, resulting in a world dedicated to peace and love.

This would seem the proper course for us on this particularly American holiday - becoming modern day Pilgrims in spreading a theme so meaningfully left us by our forefathers.

A Happy Thanksgiving to all!

Longboat, the famous Indian runner, will compete at Glen Forest tomorrow in a ten-mile race against a relay team of four men.

Arrangements have been made by the directors of the Andover Guild to equip the gymnasium with bowling alleys. The alleys will be put in by the Brunswick Balke Collander firm, and it is expected that they will be ready for use before Christmas.

It is rumored that Wood Hill is to be chopped off, and thus another one of Andover's beautiful forest covered hills is to become a blot upon the landscape. It is said that the owner, Mr. F.E. Batcheller of Lawrence, Mass., is to start men in a short time cutting off the wood. We hope this is not so. Wood Hill is one of the most beautiful sections in the western part of Andover.

The football season may now be considered as officially closed. To count the number of games that made up the schedule for yesterday would be an impossible task, but all over the country Thanksgiving Day seems now to claim for one of its most important functions, the final reckoning of football championships.

50 Years Ago — November 1933

A total of nearly $22,000 will be spent here in providing work for the jobless during the winter as a result of a grant received from the federal government. The $22,000 is Andover's share of the $12,000,000 allotted to Massachusetts. Already those on the welfare list at present have been set to work clearing brush in Carmel woods.

Leonard Craske, noted Gloucester sculptor, gave a very entertaining talk on "In and Around Gloucester with a Color Camera" at the meeting of the November Club Monday evening. Mr. Craske spoke briefly on the technical side of the color camera work, and then showed pictures of Gloucester, the harbor, and shipping, which pleased the audience because of their beauty.

The reasons why the junior high school system was developed and its various purposes were explained at the meeting of the James Otis Club in the Osgood schoolhouse last Monday night by Burr F. Jones, supervisor of elementary education in the state department who had recently made a careful inspection of the local school situation and had recommended new buildings substantially the same as recommended by the local school board.

25 Years Ago — November 1958

An urban renewal project costing $734,550 — of which the town would pay $244,850 — has been proposed for submission to the government. A meeting of the Urban Renewal Committee with the Selectmen Monday night discussed the filing of an application for further planning funds, based on the suggested program. The area as now proposed covers 26.25 acres, extending generally along both sides of Main street, from Chestnut to Elm; east to

A Special Thanks

As the holiday season rapidly approaches, I find it particularly appropriate that my thoughts now turn to a certain group of individuals whose hard work and dedication are all too often taken for granted. I am respectfully referring to all those people who make up the Andover Public School System.

After having sat through yet another lengthy School Committee meeting last week, during which so many different voices echoed the same frustrations, I could not help but think how fortunate we as townspeople are to have such persistent and patient professionals who every day do their best to assure our children the finest educational environment possible within an extremely limited budget. How easy it was for me to drive home that night, leaving most of the evening behind me, while these dedicated individuals, from custodian to superintendent, must continue to face the challenge of dealing with the day-to-day problems of operating a school system beleaguered by financial constraints.

Perhaps this Thanksgiving, as we join our families in giving thanks for so many of the opportunities afforded us in this young and struggling nation, we could find room in our hearts to offer a special thanks to all of these special people. They certainly deserve it!

JACK ANDERSON AND JOE SPEAR

WEEKLY SPECIAL

Syrian adventurism may prompt
Soviets to withdraw personnelBy Jack Anderson and Joe Spear

WASHINGTON — It has been front-page news in Washington that the Soviets and the Syrians are quarreling over strategy in Lebanon. The Soviets fear that the Syrians are getting too adventuresome and may provoke the United States into open intervention. And the Kremlin doesn't want to be drawn into a Middle East confrontation with the United States.

But there is more to the story that hasn't been reported. To avoid a direct conflict with the United States, the Soviets may pull their missile crews out of Syria. Soviet soldiers now man the SA-5 missiles the Kremlin has provided to Syria.

If the Soviet crews depart, the missiles would be turned over to the Syrians. A secret State Department cable explains why this would be bad news: "Soviet control in the operational use of these missiles ... act as a firm restraint on any adventurist inclinations by Syria."

In other words, the Syrians are more trigger-happy than the Soviets.

The presence of the Soviet crews has also served to restrain the Israelis. "An Israeli pre-emptive strike against the SA-5 sites in Syria could lead to large-scale hostilities with Syria," the secret cable states. "Such an air strike would result in casualties among the Soviet personnel who would be operating the SA-5 sites, thus escalating the level of the conflict considerably."

The cable suggests that Soviet casualties could have repercussions that neither the Syrians nor the Israelis want. But once the Soviet crews are removed, it would probably become a question of who would open fire first — the Syrians or the Israelis.

SORROWFUL ANNIVERSARY: This week, the nation will observe the 20th anniversary of John F. Kennedy's assassination, and the sorrowful occasion prompts a question: Will we ever know who really killed him?

In 1979, the House Select Committee on Assassinations concluded that President Kennedy had been killed as a result of a conspiracy that may have involved organized crime figures. The committee's conclusion that the assassination was a conspiracy was based, in part, on acoustical evidence that suggested the presence of a second gunman.

The evidence was later debunked by other scientists, but the House committee asked the Justice Department to conduct a formal review of its findings. But we are told the department won't reopen the case. Our sources say that FBI Director William Webster believes his agents should spend their time on current conspiracies by underworld figures — not one that might possibly have existed 20 years ago.

So we may never be sure who really killed JFK.

QADDAFI CONNECTION? The Rev. Jesse Jackson's entry into the Democratic presidential fray has sparked new interest in an old story: What was the nature of Jackson's previous relationship with the government of Libya?

During the Billy Carter scandal in 1980, federal agents uncovered evidence that Jackson was maintaining close contacts with Libyans in the United States. Our sources say that Jackson's Libyan connections were flagrant and raised the questions of whether he should have registered as a foreign agent.

The investigation, at that time, went nowhere, but Jackson's candidacy has rekindled interest in his Libyan connection. Reporters are checking into his background, and the Justice Department has received a flurry of Freedom of Information Act requests for its secret files on Jackson.

The story will probably be in the headlines several weeks from now, after the Justice Department has processed all the requests for its Jackson files.

"ZERO" TO U.S. — DON'T INVADE: Behind closed doors, Reagan administration officials have been discussing the possibility of offering logistical support to an invasion of Nicaragua. The action would be taken by Nicaragua's neighbors, Guatemala and Honduras.

We recently spent several hours with Eden Pastora, the charismatic former Sandinista leader known as "Commander Zero." He is now fighting against the Sandinista regime.

Pastora told us that if any foreign power intervenes in Nicaragua, it would become a "patriotic" war and his countrymen would fight to the death. Instead of intervening, Pastora said, the United States should support his guerrilla army.

He is willing, he said, to join forces with the CIA-backed faction known as FDN, but he would insist on two conditions. First, the FDN must be purged of soldiers who were affiliated with the late dictator Anastasio Somoza. Second, the FDN must agree that any future government in Nicaragua will be democratic and revolutionary.

FUTURE FILE: A slowdown in new apartment construction will create a serious shortage of rental units and rates will skyrocket. The situation won't improve, sources say, until local rent controls are lifted.

The State Department's terrorism experts predict there will be more attacks on American military and diplomatic installations abroad. The only question is where they will occur.

Kitchen Design

David A. Clement, designer

Compartmentalizing the toilet and or tub helps lead to the concept of a "living" bath. By sectioning off the more mechanical elements of the bathroom, the room begins to take on the look of a living area of the home. As a matter of fact, the past few years has seen a design trend in which the toilet closely resembles a bench. The absence of hardware and under-pinnings takes away any clinical appearance and replaces it with the look of furniture. With the addition of recessed washbasins and appropriate cabinetry, a bathroom can take on the look of a personal retreat.

Have you been thinking about a Microwave oven but just don't have the counter space for one? Come into WINDSOR KITCHENS and let one of our design experts talk to you about the possibility of one in your kitchen area. Whether it's a large or small remodeling job our workers are licensed and experienced. # Varsity Soccer Wraps Up Season

By She Livermore

Boys' Varsity Soccer held their end-of-season banquet last Wednesday at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Osgood Street.

Mrs. Gayle Keene, 1983 coordinator of the Andover Soccer Boosters, the organization which sponsored the banquet, welcomed the large gathering and expressed appreciation for the support received by the Boosters group this season.

Dave Farrel was the guest speaker and he told the players that college soccer is a lot different to high school soccer in that it involves much more effort and many more hours of practice. He said that many freshmen do not return the second year because of the commitment required.

Farrel recently graduated from Springfield College where he was captain of the varsity soccer team. He started playing soccer in Andover in seventh grade and was high scorer on the 1978 varsity team.

In his comments, Farrel mentioned that Europeans generally have more knowledge of the game than Americans and that knowledge often separates players. He said speed is an advantage but being in the right place at the right time can often compensate for a lack of speed.

Farrel concluded by stating "when you make up your mind to do something, do it the very best you can, otherwise there is no point in doing it."

The JV team, coached by Walter Marcille, captured first place in the Merrimack Valley Conference this year, as they did in 1980, 1981 and 1982. They finished the season with a 16-1-0 record, losing only to Chelmsford whom they beat in the rematch. The team has only suffered two defeats in the last three years.

Members of this year's championship team, who received trophies for their effort, were: Tri-Captains Mark Ageirsson, Rick Boucher and Bruce Crawford, as well as Chris Abell, Chris Arserio, Mark Baldwin, Bob Boshar, Steve Colitz, Rob Durrel, Paul Lambers, Paul McAdam, Shannon McCabe, Bob Pothier, Ray Reed, Sean Ross, Mark Shapiro, Jim Tannan, Dave Workman, Rob Wright, and Steve Zames.

The varsity team, coached by Dave Amundsen, finished the season with a 11-2-5 record and captured third place in the MVC, trailing second-place Methuen by only two points.

They participated in State competition for the fourth straight year and are the only team in the Conference to accomplish this feat.

Amundsen commented that this year's varsity team had more hard luck than any other team he has coached. He said "we were plagued with a great deal of sickness at the beginning of the season and before the halfway mark lost the services of center defender Mark Perlowski when he broke his leg." (A first for varsity soccer.)

Echoing Farrel's comment, Amundsen stated "when you do something, be committed."

Varsity letters and pins were awarded to Sophomores David Bartle, Barry Tucker and Scott Wilkins; Juniors Dave Casanave, John Drake, Jeff Kennedy and Gage Perry; and Seniors Zack Apgar, Steve McDowell and Mark Perlowski.

Second year bars were awarded to Juniors Nick

Bates, Paul Hevehan, Tri-Captain David Keene and Glenn Livermore; and Senior Tri-Captain Hai Dang.

A third year bar was awarded to Tri-Captain Jim Denoncourt.

Departing seniors, Apgar, Dang, Denoncourt, McDowell and Perlowski, were given their team shirts as a permanent reminder of their varsity soccer days.

A special award was given to Perlowski in recognition of the great effort he made in pre-season and his excellent play before sustaining his injury, which sidelined him for the rest of the season.

The 12th Player award, voted by the players and exemplifying a good player who consistently performs well but does not always receive recognition, was given to McDowell who filled in for the injured Perlowski.

The Most Improved Player award was given to Tri-Captain Dang who last year played a wing position but this year did an outstanding job at sweeper-back.

Junior Bates and Sophomore McAdam received recognition for being able to juggle a soccer ball, giving it 500 taps without interruption. They are now members of the Five Hundred Club and demonstrated their juggling prowess for the gathering.

The Andrew Sartory Scholarship was awarded to McDowell by George Saalfrank, Vice President of the Andover Soccer Association, in recognition of the many hours he has contributed to the youth program. Girls have received this coveted award for the past two years.

Ballboys Ed Brylchuk, Scott Livermore, Eric McDowell and Jason Tucker received sweatshirts embossed with the varsity soccer logo, as did scorekeepers Melissa Boucher and Pam McLaughlin.

The cheerleaders who have supported the team all season received their varsity letters from Coach Schleppe. Departing seniors, Captains Heather Lewis and Cheryl Scammel, as well as Joanne Saalfrank and Cira Sullivan, were presented with a soccer ball pendant by Tri-Captains Dang, Denoncourt and Keene, on behalf of the Andover Soccer Boosters organization.

Ski Club To Hold Practice

The Andover Buddy Werner League will hold dryland ski practices on Sunday, Nov. 27. The club urges all current members and anyone interested in joining, ages 5-13, to meet on the hill behind West Junior High at 10 a.m.

The purpose of the practice is to familiarize new members and refresh past skiers with the race courses set up later in the season on snow. A designated number of gates and courses will be set up which the racers will run through, guided by the club's coaches. This exercise is designed to sharpen the course reading abilities of the skiers during meets, which will begin in January. Everyone is invited to participate in an intermural soccer game after practice. For further information, contact Rick Heislain evenings.

Written Christmas greetings date back to the early 1300s when English schoolboys penned holiday letters to their parents as an exercise. Then, in 1846, too busy to write his usual Christmas letters, Sir Henry Copley sent out printed cards, the first of billions now sent out all over the world.

Special Driving Skills Needed For Winter

If you drive a car for work or pleasure, now is the time to start thinking about safety in the frigid months ahead, says the Insurance Information Institute.

The easiest thing to do when ice and snow cover roads is to leave your car home and take public transportation, but in many parts of the snowbelt region that's easier said than done. If you must drive, the institute urges that you exercise care at all times.

Here are tips that should allow you to drive safely and comfortably in the winter months:

Be especially careful when braking or accelerating at dusk or dawn when streets and roads are frequently icy.

If your car starts to skid, steer in the direction of the skid. This maneuver is intended to get the front of the car in line with the rear of the car. Take your foot off the accelerator, don't start braking until the car has slowed and you have regained control.

Don't be a peephole driver. Take a few minutes before leaving home or work to clear ice and snow off the front and back windows of your car. If snow accumulates while driving, stop and repeat the job. Turn slowly on wet and slick areas.

Watch for icy patches on overpasses, bridges and hills. These areas freeze quickly, usually before other road surfaces.

Increase the distance between your car and the car ahead. It will help to avoid a collision in case of sudden stops.

When approaching an intersection, be prepared to respond to traffic light changes. The stop-and-go traffic at intersections makes the road surface very slippery.

Make sure you have good snow tires.

The institute advises every motorist to anticipate emergencies. A winter survival kit in your car ought to include at least one pair of heavy gloves, flares, matches and flashlight with fresh batteries, battery jumper cables with instructions regarding their proper use, screwdriver and pliers, a heavy wool blanket, ice scraper, rock salt, sand or gravel to pour under the tires if you get bogged down in snow.

The comprehensive coverage in an automobile insurance policy provides payments for many claims in addition to fire and theft such as tree branches or large icicles falling on the vehicles, as well as wind or water damage.

The institute reminds those with winter weather-related insurance claims to notify their agent or company representative immediately after a loss.

Consumers can obtain more information on automobile insurance by writing for a free copy of "Auto Insurance Basics." Send a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope to the Publications Service Center, Insurance Information, 110 William St., New York, N.Y. 10038.

Survey

Beginning December 1, local representatives of the U.S. Bureau of the Census will visit selected households in the area to conduct the new Survey of Income and Program Participation (SIPP).

The SIPP program is being conducted in response to the need for better information on the economic well-being of the U.S. population. Information collected will be used to determine how selected government programs are working, and help policy makers to consider what changes are needed to make programs more effective.

Area households are among 18,000 nationwide taking part in the survey. Interviewers will gather information on jobs, earning, participation in various government programs and population characteristics. Summary data from the survey will be published periodically.

Information supplied in the survey will be kept confidential under provisions of Title 13 of the U.S. Code. The information will be used only to prepare statistical summaries from which no individual or household can be identified. Representatives conducting the interviews will carry credentials identifying them as Census Bureau employees.

Pamela Kvilekval from the Andover Public Schools with Eliot Wigginton of Foxfire fame at the Winchester conference.

At Winchester Conference

More than 120 educators and concerned citizens from all over the eastern United States came together last month at Thayer High School in Winchester, N.H., for the Winchester Conference. Two themes dominated the conference: finding ways to make education adapt to changing circumstances and making those changes with limited resources.

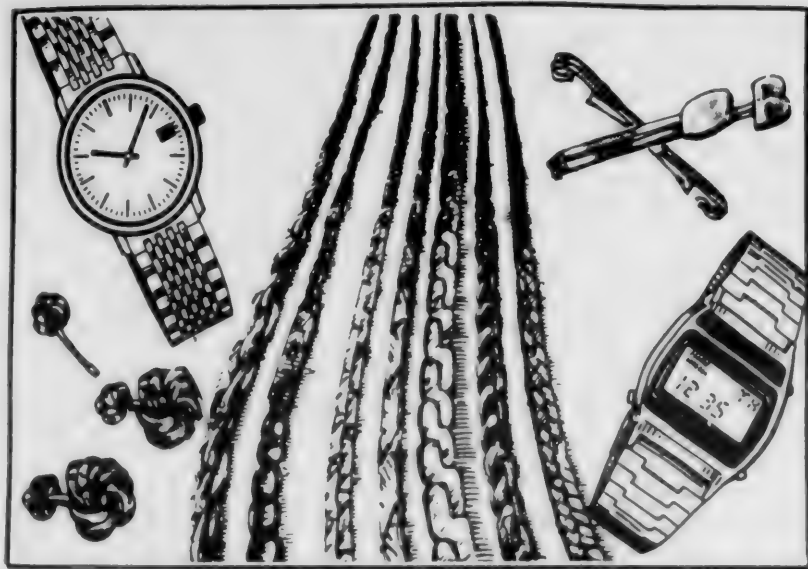

"It was really an excellent conference," said Pamela Kvilekval of Andover. "I wanted to relook at education and what education really means in today's world. It's a broad topic, and that's why I came."

Highlighting the conference were speeches by Ted Sizer, former dean of Harvard Graduate School of Education and chairman of the national "Study on High Schools," Eliot Wigginton, founder of the Foxfire program in Georgia, and Lee Hay, futurist and National Teacher of the Year, plus nine other top theorists and practitioners from around the nation. They joined conference participants in small, working groups to share, discuss and develop a plan for change "back home." Although all the speakers approached education from different angles, they all said very much the same thing: the world is changing quickly and educators must change their approaches to prepare students for a vastly different world.

Unique features of the conference were that participants were housed with town residents for the weekend and Thayer High School students participated in all phases of the conference, from planning, preparing and serving food to joining in working groups.

Quiet Assistance

Mime Melodie Arterberry from the Kendall Center for the Arts, offers a patient at Bon Secours hospital a button, during a visit to begin the hospital's Quiet Awareness campaign.

Quiet Campaign At Hospital

Since Bon Secours Hospital is a busy place, experiencing the daily hustle and bustle that's part of its work, a tremendous amount of activity is necessary. But, it can and should be accomplished quietly. With this in mind, a group of hospital employees decided to organize a quiet awareness campaign. This soon-to-be-known "Quiet Committee" generated some ideas designed to serve as reminders for all of us.

The hospital's inhouse bulletin will carry feature articles on the physiological effects of noise, how it impacts convalescence, and some hints on keeping it to a minimum. Buttons bearing the slogan "Kindly Care Begins With Quiet" will be distributed to all staff members, while artwork by cartoonist Bob Alexander will be presented throughout the hospital and permanently displayed in patient units. The committee has also recommended changes in paging practices, beeper purchases, patient call systems and visitor control. The hospital is beginning to implement these recommendations along with a maintenance program that prevents squeaky wheels, doors, etc.

Rehabilitation Hospital Under Construction

Northeast Rehabilitation Hospital, a highly specialized hospital for physical rehabilitation, is being constructed in Salem, N.H. It will service patients in the Merrimack Valley and Southern

New Hampshire who have had strokes, traumatic brain or spinal cord injuries, amputations, neuromuscular diseases, etc.

The $13 million project will be owned jointly by Neuro-Rehab Assoc., Inc., a group of local physicians headed by Dr. Howard M. Gardner of Andover, and Rehab Hosp. Services Corp. of Harrisburg, Pa., a publicly held company which owns and operates many other rehabilitation hospitals throughout the country.

"We are confident that this is a dynamic partnership," stated Dr. Gardner. "The expertise of RHSC in rehab management and administration, coupled with the physicians' control of all medical aspects, will result in first-class rehabilitation for the Merrimack Valley and New Hampshire."

The new hospital, built on an Old Searles hunting estate, will cover 80,000 square feet and provide the most up-to-date equipment and care. Patients, having completed a stay at an acute care hospital, will be given intensive physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech and hearing treatment and hydrotherapy. A wide range of social services will be coordinated with the physical therapy programs geared toward the patient's recovery and return to as near a normal life as possible.

"The foundation is now complete," reports Naomi Gardner, director of public relations for the hospital. "The steel beams will go up the beginning of December and, barring any major blizzards, we hope to be enclosed by mid-February." The hospital should be operational by Fall 1984.

The program is designed to update nurses on current allergy theories and nursing practice including laboratory findings, symptoms, drug therapy and side effects.

The seminar is approved for 2.4 contact hours from the Massachusetts Nurses Association, the accredited continuing approval organization.

The Selectmen have only six applications on file from persons wanting to fill the town manager's job next year. All are from distant places. In answer to a direct query, all three Selectmen agreed that no local person has either formally or informally applied for the position.

Four Shawsheen organizations have banded together to support formation of a Shawsheen Community Center, using the Richardson School on Lowell Street as a headquarters. The Shawsheen Village Improvement Association suggested forming the Center for recreation activities for all age and interest groups in the Village.

10 Years Ago — November 1973

With increasing concern over the fuel crisis, Town Manager J. Maynard Austin this week took steps to expeditiously use heating fuel and gasoline in accordance with predicted availability. John Lewis has been ordered to co-ordinate the distribution of Number Two fuel oil and Public Works Office Manager Calvin Metcalf is in charge of allocating gasoline for all municipal vehicles. The Number Two fuel oil, the grade with the least availability, is used in the town hall, library and Bancroft school.

With an eye toward making the elected officials to the town more responsible for the community's involvement in regional planning matters, the selectmen and planning board met Monday night preparatory to issuing a formal statement on the subject next Monday night. Regional planning and how Andover participates in it has been a subject of controversy between some members of both boards for some time.

A job well done and a town well served — that was the theme of the wrap-up meeting of the Doherty-Shawsheen Building Committee Nov. 15, as Architect Kenneth Dinisco of Johnson, Hotvedt and Associates submitted the contractor's "final and accurate" cost totals. Building committee and architect were praised by Town Manager J. Maynard Austin, School Principals Lois Haslam and Isabel Dobbie, and by each other, for excellent judgement, hard work and conscientious attention to detail.

Strike Force Formed To Halt Auto Thefts

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis announced a sweeping crackdown on auto theft in Massachusetts which includes an unprecedented cooperative effort among local, state and federal law enforcement agencies and the insurance industry.

The comprehensive crackdown made public this month is aimed at reversing an auto theft pattern which has made Massachusetts the leading state in stolen car statistics for several years.

"For car thieves, both professional and amateur," Dukakis said, "stealing cars has been a low-risk venture with a high rate of return. While people are shopping in malls, car thieves with their own shopping lists are stealing cars which have been ordered in advance through sophisticated car theft rings."

The Governor said that law enforcement officials are well aware of the magnitude of the problem. "This problem has been studied to death. Now it's time for some action," he said.

For the first time detectives from the state, metropolitan, registry and Boston police departments and the Federal Bureau of Investigation will work together in a 25-member strike force to uncover and destroy the $100 million auto theft business in Massachusetts.

The strike force will be augmented by resources and a backup force from the attorney general and district attorney offices, MBTA and Capitol police, Massachusetts Auto Rating and Accident Prevention Bureau and the Massachusetts Motor Vehicle Reinsurance Facility.

To complement the police crackdown on organized crime rings and fraud schemes that have given Massachusetts the reputation of "auto theft capital of the nation," a public information campaign will be launched by Secretary of Consumer Affairs Paula Gold to inform car owners of the most effective techniques for preventing their cars from being stolen.

In Massachusetts, where one car is stolen every 10 minutes, the auto theft rate is nearly twice the national average and the highest of all states.

The 25-member police strike force is made up of five officers from each of the state, metropolitan, registry and Boston police departments and five FBI agents. It will be headed by Maj. Peter W. Agnes, director of the State Office of Investigations, who will report directly to Secretary of Public Safety Charles V. Barry.

The cooperative effort among police agencies which is the cornerstone of the governor's Auto Theft Strike Force is unique, according to James Greenleaf, FBI special agent in charge of the four state New England region of Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

"This is the first time in the history of the region that the federal, state and local law enforcement communities have taken a serious step, not only in identifying the scope of the auto theft problem, but in doing something about it," Greenleaf said.

The insurance industry will play an integral role in both the law enforcement and public information efforts by providing funding and sharing information regarding auto theft and fraud. The Massachusetts Auto Rating and Accident Prevention Bureau made up of all automobile insurance companies in the state, will provide $475,000 to help support the police strike force and the public information campaign. The Massachusetts Motor Vehicle Reinsurance Facility will funnel information about suspicious insurance claims and repair bills to the strike force.

George Morison, president of the Massachusetts Auto Rating and Accident Prevention Bureau, said that the auto insurers enthusiastically supported the effort.

Raymond M. LaFontaine, head of the reinsurance facility, added, "Automobile theft has been an epidemic for too many years in Massachusetts. As an industry, we are happy to have a governor who has the vision to recognize this problem and take positive action to eliminate it. I feel an intensive law enforcement effort, coupled with the planned public awareness campaign, can only reflect positively on the rates Massachusetts motorists pay for their insurance."

Persons having information about a regular pattern of suspicious activity taking place in a garage, junk yard or elsewhere are asked to call the Strike Force at 1-800-HOT-AUTO.

Our traditional Christmas turkey does not appear on many menus around the world. The French reveillon, a feast which occurs after midnight Mass, is apt to feature oysters and sausages. In the French province of Brittany, buckwheat cakes with sour cream are served.

For centuries, small Spanish settlements in the American southwest have celebrated Christmas Eve with torchlight or candlelight processions. Paths to hillside shrines and churches are lit with pinon wood bonfires known as shepherd's fires or "luminarias."

TRAVEL ANYWHERE

ONE ELM SQ., ANDOVER, MA

Graber

was saved by a developer who purchased the Musgrove and all of Post Office Avenue for $80,000. Graber says.

Graber found new quarters on Park Street, and became a "crusader" for Andover landmarks. He campaigned — unsuccessfully — to save the old fire station behind Town Hall (the former fire station site is now the Town Hall parking lot), but at least salvaged a load of bricks that are now his driveway.

He admits that Elm Square had to change. "Obviously it couldn't go on the way it was — that's the economics of a prime business location." But the photographer is not impressed with the square's eighties look.

"It's very glossy now — all of downtown Andover has become much more glossy." The small family-owned boutiques that once lined Main Street have been replaced by large bank-owned facades, he notes. "It's completely different."

As for the infamous Elm Square renovations: Graber says he is "rather bitter" about the wide concrete sidewalks poured around the Musgrove. "I just think that's a real mess. Brick or almost anything else would have been better, but concrete — that's there forever."

Andover itself is a changed community, he adds, a much more transient one. He remembers a time when a resident of "only" 15 years who rose to speak at town meeting was considered an upstart; today, residents of two or three years run for local office.

And he remembers a sense of disdain between townspeople and Phillips Academy, a rivalry non-existent now that the academy community is also more transient. "That old town-gown thing was really a charming relic of the past."

Graber had forgotten about his Elm Square photos, most of them never printed, until just last year. He was inspired to create an exhibit when he printed a few shots of the Musgrove and local residents didn't recognize the building. He was surprised: "To me, the Musgrove building always looks like that — I translate it to that in my mind. But it has been a transformation — it's just not the same building."

The photographer has some ideas for future shows now, particularly one on Park Street and the demolition of the fire station.

He no longer works downtown: He left Park Street three years ago, and the site of his last shop is now Justin's restaurant. He misses working in the business district ("Working alone can get very lonely"). And it has been years since he last wandered around Andover with his camera; everyday scenes seem too commonplace now. "Twenty years ago, I was new and looking at it with a fresh eye."

But he recently realized that "the things that seem perfectly ordinary today will be interesting 20 years from now. I should try and go out, because things disappear and things change," Richard Graber says. "Nobody else is doing it — so I'll appoint myself to do it."

At times, strings of popcorn, berries and gilt nuts, as well as paper flowers, tiny dolls, candies and cookies, were used to decorate the Christmas tree.

Peugeot reinvents the big wagon

It's bigger than the best-selling imported or American wagons.

With its back seat up, it holds even more than the hold-over dimensions from Detroit.

Yet here's a pleasant surprise — this is one big wagon that is designed not to wag its tail clumsily from side to side on the highway.

The Peugeot 505 GL wagon. Huge inside. Not too huge outside. A wagon with the road handling of a European sedan.

Workshop

"Chemotherapy for Nurses" will be the topic of a workshop by the Lawrence General Hospital department of education in the hospital's auditorium on Thursday, Dec. 1, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The workshop carries a credit of 8.1 Massachusetts Nurses Association contact hours. A Dutch treat lunch will be available.

The program will focus on assessment, anticipated effects of drug therapy and emotional and spiritual considerations.

For further information, contact the department of education at the hospital.

Conservation Grants Program. The current grant money will be used for the installation of an incinerator designed to recover the heat generated by burning refuse presently transported elsewhere. According to hospital Chief Engineer Joseph Sheehy, "This new process of eliminating waste materials will save us 2,000 gallons of fuel oil weekly, translating into a $72,000 annual savings." Currently in its initial stages, the project is expected to be completed in a year.

In addition to this cost-saving effort, the hospital has completed numerous energy conservation projects including the installation of insulated glass windows, the reduction of thermal heat loss through a decrease in steam pressure, the use of efficient lighting and the recaulking of exterior walls.

Before introducing America's most aerodynamic sedan, we took it for a little test drive.

The new Audi 5000S is so revolutionary, so aerodynamic, we put it to some unusually rigorous tests.

We drove it 3.2 million kilometers through the rain forests of Africa, the deserts of North America, and the mountains of Europe. And it lived up to every one of our expectations.

Thanks to the new Audi's slippery 0.33 drag coefficient, which puts it in a class with the world's most exotic sports cars, it manages air resistance like no sedan ever has.

This aerodynamic benchmark allows the new Audi 5000S to cruise highways with exceptional tracking and directional control, even in strong crosswinds. And accelerate from zero to 50 in just 8 seconds.

Yet this new sedan has Audi's customary abundance of luxury appointments. And front-wheel drive—an Audi standard for 53 years.

The Europeans call the new Audi 5000S "Car of The Year." In America, at $16,480,* you'll call it an incomparable value. Especially with our new 24-month, unlimited mileage warranty.**

So be sure to arrange a test drive. You won't have to take it as far as we did. Though you just might want to

BUSINESS PROFILES

Merrimack Service Center

Stop by Merrimack Service Center, conveniently located on Rt. 125 at Hillside Rd. (next to Trombly Motor Coach) in North Andover for all your repairs needs.

Specializing in general repairs for foreign and domestic cars, owner Jeff Watson, with over 20 years experience servicing automobiles, will find whatever problems your car has.

Jeff and his mechanics also specialize in repairs and restorations of all corvettes (like the one pictured above). In fact, they can repair, restore, rebuild and even soup-up any special interest car: classics or high performance cars. Their quality workmanship speaks for itself!

So if you have a classic car that needs work or a high performance car that needs fine-tuning, stop by Merrimack Service Center where you know your car is in good hands.

The fall has been mild but now is the time to winterize your car, before winter hits. A pre-winter tune-up may be what saves you from being stuck in the first snow storm! For example, cars with automatic transmissions require an oil and filter change in the transmission itself to keep it operating smoothly throughout the winter.

And if you do get caught in the snow (or any time), call Merrimack Service Center for on-the-spot road repairs.

Your car not up to par? Let the mechanics at Merrimack Service Center diagnose and repair your car. They can eliminate the problems that are giving your car poor engine performance or low fuel efficiency. They'll check your brakes, tires, front end and exhaust system giving your car a thorough examination.

Used cars are also bought, sold and traded at Merrimack Service Center. They also do body work including painting, sandblasting and rustproofing.

So no matter what type of car you drive - foreign, domestic, classic or high performance - and whether you need a tune-up or an engine overhaul, stop by Merrimack Service Center where you'll find friendly service and low, low prices. Open Mon.-Fri. 7:30-5 p.m. and Sat. 8:30-2 p.m. Tel. 685-9888.

WALL PERSONALITY

Decorating a newly bought home can be fun, but it can also present problems. The former owners may have been happy with those splashy red and blue flowers in the hall, but you might think they're just a little TOO much! So you pick out something more subtle to fit your family's personality. Whether you paint or put up new wallpaper, the big question will confront you: "Do I take off the old wallpaper before putting something over it?"

The answer is...if the old paper is solid and tight against the wall, with secure seams and no bulges, chances are it's okay. You can probably paint or put new wallpaper over it. But you're wise to inspect it carefully. Don't fret if there's a few loose pieces. You can remove them and smooth down the edges with sandpaper, or even re-glue some of them back into place.

If it's all pretty loose, you have no choice but to pull all the old paper down. This can be done with a rented steamer, liquid wallpaper remover, or a wet sponge. It's quite a bit of work and somewhat messy. But it must be done to ensure a good base for the new paint or wallpaper. It's all worth it. Paint and paper can improve a home's personality faster and less expensively than anything else.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at THE HOWE AGENCY, 4 Punchard Ave., Andover. Phone: 475-5100. We're here to help.

LET US GIVE THANKS FOR SO MANY BLESSINGS WE ENJOY IN ANDOVER...

A lovely town - well managed and wisely governed.

Exceptional schools - a wonderful advantage for our children - and a tribute to very dedicated school administrators and teachers.

The ecumenical spirit among our churches - establishing the fundamental beliefs in all of us.

The merchants who have shown good taste in displaying their merchandise so attractively in our downtown area.

Our industrial plants - an effort certainly has been made by them to enhance our town and we appreciate their presence when the tax bills are due!!

Our contractors who have built and are building such beautiful homes. We appreciate the quality of their work.

So many others in our town to whom we owe our gratitude - doctors, lawyers, dentists, accountants, hairdressers, barbers, restaurateurs, librarians, etc.

BUT MOST OF ALL - Our Customers, without whom we wouldn't be in business. We are deeply grateful for your loyalty to us and take this opportunity to THANK YOU.

Library

Richardson and Abbot.

Following a plan approved by annual town meeting, the developer will actually purchase the library from the town, and then lease it to Andover for 15 years at $450,000 a year; at the end of that time, the town will buy back the library.

The sell-and-buy-back plan is designed to save the town money, since a private developer can take advantage of federal tax credits not available to the town.

The federal government has since closed the loophole that allowed municipalities to use such plans to indirectly gain a tax advantage, but Andover is among several communities that have won exemptions to allow completion of projects already underway. The town must sell the library to a developer before the end of the year to keep that exemption.

The plan, Spiegel has said, "makes sense" because it will save the town at least $1 million.

As approved by town meeting, the project will nearly double the size of the library, building a 29,000-square foot addition where the library parking lot and Essex Street theater building now stand. The project will also add 71 new parking spaces, a new roof and other renovations to the existing building.

The library is expected to remain open throughout the construction.

Work is also progressing on another project approved by the annual meeting last spring: a 150-space parking lot on the site of the former Purity Supreme store on Bartlet

Street. The grocery store has been razed, and Mahony said that depending on the weather, the site would be paved this week to provide temporary parking.

The lot was scheduled for paving last week but rainy weather delayed the work, the manager said. The temporary surface will allow parking during the winter; more extensive work on the site will begin next spring.

At times, strings of popcorn, berries and gilt nuts, as well as paper flowers, tiny dolls, candies and cookies, were used to decorate the Christmas tree.

Lecture
